SNAP JUDGMENT

We loaned an inexpensive, point-and-shoot, auto-everything camera to several professional photographers and asked for their impressions of the Valley.

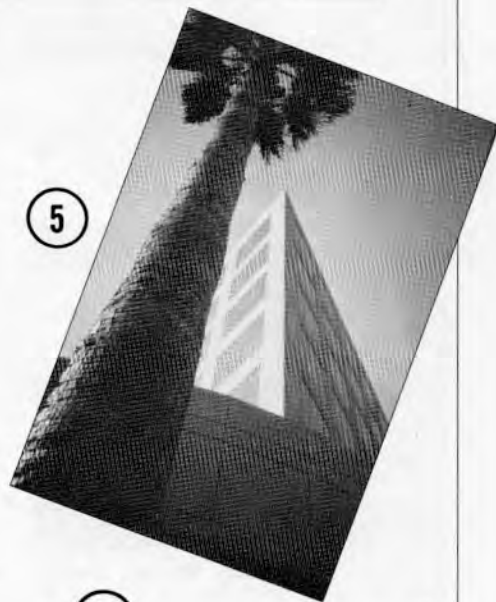

"Take your best shot," we said. "In fact, take three shots." We wanted all of their images on a single roll of film—a group show—sort of the photographic equivalent of a chain letter.

Bernward Thorsch of Studio City Camera Exchange provided the camera (a Ricoh), and Moses Sparks of Northridge courageously snapped the first "frame."
